3. Using „Google Ads” conversion tracking

The data controller uses the “Google Ads” online advertisement program, and within it, the data controller uses the conversion tracking service of Google. Google conversion tracking is the analytic service of Google Inc. (1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043, USA; “Google”).

When the User accesses a website through a Google advertisement, a cookie, necessary for conversion tracking, gets to their computer. The validity of these cookies is limited, and they contain no personal data, therefore the User cannot be identified by them.

When the User browses certain pages of the website, and the cookie has not yet expired, then Google and the data controller both can see that the User clicked on the advertisement. From the masses of users the individual user, data subject cannot be identified, so personal data is not processed.

All Google Ads customers receive different cookies, so these cannot be tracked through the websites of the customers of Ads.

The information obtained with the help of the conversion tracking cookies serve the purpose of preparing conversion statistics for customers of Ads who selected conversion tracking. This is how customers get informed about the number of users clicking on their advertisements and forwarded to a site with a conversion tracking label. However they do not get any information that could be used to identify any of the users.

If you do not want to participate in conversion tracking, you can refuse it by disabling the option to install cookies in your browser. After this you will not be in the conversion tracking statistics.

Additional information and the data protection statement of Google can be found on the following website: www.google.de/policies/privacy/
